SATTVA

by Perla Castañón

In Hindu philosophy, the sattva concept refers to a way of existence that is associated with goodness, positivity, serenity, balance, peace and virtuosity; in the pieces of the Sattva collection, which includes a chair, a multipurpose stool and a side table, this inspiration is reflected in the balance of two colors -natural and black-, in the flowing lines and weaves, and even in its own vegetal materiality, since they are made entirely of rattan.

PERLA CASTAÑÓN

About

Mexican designer based in Mexico City. She specializes in art direction, interior and furniture design. She has participated in numerous group exhibitions and design fairs, and has collaborated in dozens of film, audiovisual and advertising projects.

Through her work as a designer she seeks to break the paradigms of the discipline that regard design as something elitist and lucrative only for a small percentage of those involved in the process. The development of her projects is strongly influenced by the spiritual search she has undertaken with the purpose of finding a more human perspective of design in general, and of the role that this discipline has in society.

CGN

About

CGN is a design gallery based in Querétaro, Mexico; founded in 2011. CGN fosters the critical discussion and production of contemporary design. The gallery promotes contemporary pieces with a meaningful function.

CGN pieces embody a contemporary and clever approach to materiality, geometry, fabrication and functionality. CGN furthers its mission through an exhibition program striving to present critical and didactic shows committed to helping visitors better understand and appreciate the design disciplines.

Devoted to the advancement of design in Mexico, CGN safeguards a growing collection of 21st century Mexican pieces. The collection serves as a live archive that attests to the state of design in the country.
